ABOUT VADODARA

"There is a saying that nothing grows under the banyan tree, but this is not true of Baroda". Baroda is also known as 'Sanskari Nagari', that is, a 'cultured city'. So, the culture of the city is not just history or heritage; it is dynamic, ever-changing and alive.

Vadodara, Gujarat's third largest city, is considered the state's cultural capital. Modern Baroda is a great and fitting memorial to its late ruler, Sir Sayaji Rao Gaekwad. Baroda is one of the most important centers for textile, chemical and oil industries today. Modern Baroda owes its beauty, its educational institutions and its masterpieces of architecture to the insight and vision of this great ruler.

Yes, Baroda is one of India's most cosmopolitan cities. Baroda has welcomed a wide variety of people from all over India and also from all over the world, Baroda is synonymous with education.
